M. Farhan Habib is currently a PhD candidate in the Department of Computer Science at the University of California, Davis. He received the M.S. degree in computer science from University of California, Riverside, and the B.S. degree in computer science and engineering from Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology, Bangladesh in 2010 and 2004, respectively. He was a lecturer at Ahsanullah University of Science and Technology, Bangladesh from March 2004 to February 2006, and at Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology, Bangladesh from February 2006 to August 2008. He worked as an intern at Intel Corporation from June 2012 to September 2012. His research interests include survivability, programmability, and energy efficiency of communication networks, network modeling, measurement, and optimization.